

Dear Parents,

The students and I have discussed the Trojan Expectations and how they relate to Physical Education class. The Trojan Expectations are listed below and are posted in the gym as a daily reminder. On the opposite side you will see the various ways the students can earn green dojo points. Each class has a goal they will try to reach by the end of the 9 weeks in order to receive a reward day in PE class. At the end of the 9 weeks the PE Class Dojo points will be reset to zero and a new goal will begin.

As a parent, what should I see when I look at my child’s PE dojo points?

- Your child should earn at least 7 or more dojo points in PE class.
- Examples: tennis shoes, proper clothes, coming in quietly, team time, water break, overall participation, lining up.
- There are additional ways to earn points as pictured on the other side
- There are orange points with a zero value for warnings
- There are red points given after the student receives a warning and did not correct the behavior
- The red points do not subtract from the green points (they are separate)
- The points are reset to zero weekly
- If you are connected to the classroom teacher you can also connect with me.
- I will communicate with parents on the dojo by sending messages, post different things that happen in class, information about school/class events that pertain to PE, address behavior concerns and medical concerns all through dojo. Also please feel free to email me as well if needed. (sfields@ncmcs.org).

Below are the Trojan Expectations.
